- 1. According to a report from El Salvador, the Micaraguan Opposition is split into three groups: one is headed by General mulliano Chamorro, the second by Toribio
- 2. Of the three, General Chamorro's Conservative Party is the largest numerically and the richest financially. A report from Nicaragua states that Chamorro's group possesses the following arms: 300 rifles, 18 machine guns and some automatic rifles acquired almost a year ago.

Tijerine, and the third by the Patriotic Micaraguan Committee which sided Jose

- 3. Teribio Tijerino's group consists of few supporters. Although Tijerino works at times with Chamorro, they are reported to be bitter personal whemies. Tijerino, probably with Chamorro's knowledge and perhaps with some assistance from him, is reported to be organizing opposition forces within Micaragua.
- 4. The Patriotic Ricaraguan Committee is a group of Conservatived and Liberals. The Committee forms a kind of action front representing the Frence Pro-Libertad de Micaragua. This group consists of Ricaraguan exiles, who, for the most part, are in Guatemala. Carlos Castillo Toarra, who is in El Salvador, and many of the younger conservatives are reported to disagree with General Chamorro for practical rather than personal reasons. They believe that Chamorro is a man of the past who will be incapable of leading Nicaragua in the post-Somona period. Ibarra and Tijerino have also disagreed with Chamorro on the best may to fight Somona and for the past year have relied on the Patriotic Nicaraguan Committee, which jusped at the chance of aiding the Costa Rican Opposition in the hopes of obtaining a base from which to attack Somona.

5. The opposition within Micaragua, it is reported, does not give any importance to either the Tijerine group or the Patrictic Micaraguan Commuttee group. They feel that although Chamorre may be cooperating with the two groups at times, Chamorre is the main force and it is he who has been supplying the victorious Costa Rican Opposition with arms. This unsupported conviction prosupposes an agreement through which Chamorre will be able to use the Costa Rican Opposition arms for the drive against Somoza.
